

Graphic Communications Industry

Who's Who

PART 1

There are many types of careers in the graphic communications industry. Use the Internet and your researching skills to learn about a variety of career paths that are part of this industry.

Step 1.

Use this website to get you started: <http://www.khake.com/page27.html> This is a career guide to graphic design, graphic communications and printing career descriptions. This is another site to help you: <http://www.graphiccommcentral.org/employ/job-descriptions/>

Using the websites above, write about five different career paths and give a concise description about each field.

Step 2.

Now choose one career path and from above and provide much more detail about that path. What education is needed, where can you go to receive that education and for how long? What types of jobs are part of this career path? What type of hours would you work, salary, benefits, locations?

Step 3. Locate a person that is working in this field and type up an overview of at least five pieces of information about your person. Then, explain how this person has impacted our world today.
