

Labeling Art Projects

The most important thing students can do to take responsibility for the work they do in art class may be to make sure that it is labeled properly. Labeling work properly helps ensure that a student's work doesn't "get lost in the shuffle" of the other projects created by all of Hilton's nearly 510 students.

A student's project label should include the following two things:

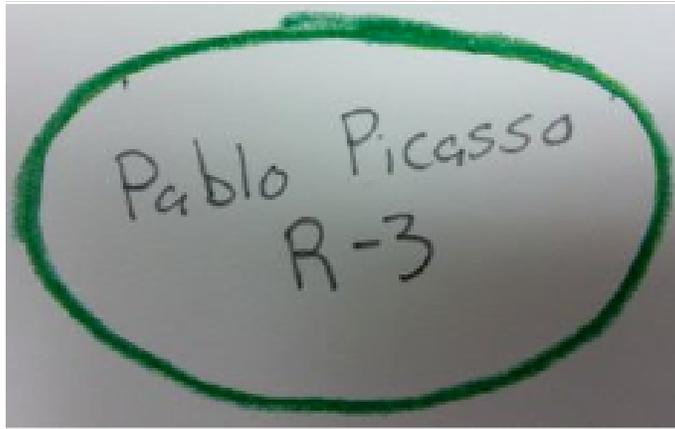

1. Their name

2. Their class code (This is a special code made from your child's classroom teacher's initial(s) and grade level. For instance, if your son or daughter is in Mrs. Rousseau's third grade class, the class code would be "R-3". Please look to the end of this section for a complete list of class codes for the entire school).

These two things should:

- be written on the back of all two dimensional work someplace in the middle when they start an art project (Note: Labeling of three dimensional art work is done differently depending on the materials used)
- be written with a drawing pencil (#2 pencil)
- be clearly printed or hand written
- include the student's last name (first through fourth grade only).
- be written large enough to be read but not "huge" (No bigger than the size of your child's hand).
- be circled with a crayon that matches your child's art studio table color

Example Project Label

If the above label is on the back of a child's art project, it shows that the student's name is "Pablo Picasso", he's in Mrs. Rousseau's third grade class and he sits at the "green" table in the art classroom.

Class Code List (2012-2013 school year):

Blazo (B-K)
Hurlbert (H-K)
Spanstra (S-K)
Renner (R-K)
Loiselle (L-K)
Cowgill (C-K)
Johnson (J-1)
Warrick (W-1)
Beaupre (B-1)
Obert (O-1)
Barclay (B-2)
Phelps (P-2)
Hames (H-2)
Rousseau (R-3)
Beane (B-3)
Welter (W-3)
Morley (M-3)
Resconich (R-4)
Beckett (B-4)
Michaels (M-4)
Shah (S-4)